If your current winter coat isn't standing up to this winter's cold temperatures, you may want to invest in a fur coat.

If you're looking to get a good price on a coat and help Project Hospitality at the same time, you can attend Staten Island Furrier's annual fur sale from Feb. 17 to 19 at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Richmond.

The proceeds from the event will benefit Project Hospitality.

Staten Islanders can purchase pre-owned vintage fur coats and jackets with a discounted price tag.

There will be more than 250 fur coats available to buy, and plenty of staff on hand to help customers.

The sale will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday; 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday.

For more information, call 718-987-7434.

Race cars are placed on the track at the Pinewood Derby. Some creative designs on the cars included Batman and Star Wars.

DERBY

FROM A1

Each car goes through a process of elimination, facing every car in their age group to ensure the race is fair.

First-, second- and third-place winners from each grade were awarded trophies and will compete at the citywide finals held in Times Square in June.

Cars raced on a new track this year, donated by Eagle Scout and Councilman Joseph Borelli (R-South Shore).

Some creative designs on race cars at Sunday's event included Batman, Star Wars and the Flash. Any design is allowed, as long as the car meets the official weight and dimension requirements.

"We have some of the best handlers here," said Richard Hahl, Pinewood Derby chairman for the Staten Island Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

"We are all a team here and have been doing this for many years. It's a lot of fun to see one of the little guys come away with a trophy bigger than he is."

FIRST YEAR FOR GIRLS

While there were no girls competing in the derby on Sunday, it was the first year that young women were able to compete.

Grace Gaffney, the first female Cub Scout in New York City, came to the event to cheer on her fellow Scouts.

The 9-year-old Pack 88 Scout joined the Boy Scouts of America because she enjoys the outdoors.

"I mostly like going on camping trips and going to the lake," Gaffney said.

Nicholas Bourekas, 10, of Pack 132, said his dad helped him create his green-colored race car.

When asked what he was most excited for, he said: "To win."

Senior Webelos first-place winner, Robert Milosavljevic, of Pack 160, said it was exciting and cool to win.

"It's aerodynamic and the weight was more balanced than my other cars," he said about his red race car.

"I like red because it's my favorite color and it's my brother's favorite color too."
